CONVICTS STEAL

Iwo Make Their Escape From Library, and One Takes Valuable Clothing.

Two short term convicts from the penitentiary, who were engaged in cleaning up the offices at the State Library, made their escape about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and, though dilacent search is being made for them, they have not yet been found.

Perhaps they will never be recaptured, as there are no distinct marks of identity about them. They are both negroes and had good records, both at the penitentiary and about the Library building, where they have worked for some time.

They were Burch Helm, of Reancke county, who was received May 18, 1995, for one year, and Willie Combs, of Elizabeth City county, who came in June, 1995, for a like term.

Mr. J. E. Barrow, who had charge of the prisoners, stepped into the auditor's office for a few moments, leaving the men engaged in cleaning up Treasurer Harman's office. He was absent for only a few moments, but when he returned, the men had gone, and no trace of thom could be found.

The convict garb of one of the men was found, but that of the other can not be loggied, nor is but one suit of clothing missing from about the building. One of the men left his stripes and took instead a $30 suit and a $10 Panama hat belonging to Mr. Paul Schulrel. of New York, who is at work on the new heating plant.

Mr. Schnirel had to remain in his working garb until he could send out and get some clothing from his boarding house.

An Attempt Last Night to Amend the Ordinance

Those in the Employ of City Who May Be Disabled to Be Cared for.

After an unsuccessful attempt to amend it to make the maximum, speed ten mile an hour, the ordinance fixing the speed limit of automobiles at eight miles at hour through the streets of the city

The amendment was offered by Alderman Robert Whittet, Jr., of Clay Ward who spoke for the ten-mile limit. He contended that physicians very often used automobiles, and that to compel them automobiles, and that to compel them to reduce the speed to eight miles an hour would be a hardship. In his contentions, Alderman Whittet had an able assistant in the person of Alderman John B. Minor, of Lee Ward. Mr. Minor argued that to make the limit eight miles an hour would mean that the ordinance would not be enforced, whereas if the speed was regulated at ten miles an hour the police would be more vigilant in bringing to court all offenders. The ordinance was passed by a viva voce vote.

The report was adopted, and the ordinance rejected. The Board adopted the resolution appropriating $200 to defray the expenses of Superintendent Davis to the Association of National Charicties, that meets in Portland, Oregon, July 15 to 22nd, of this month.

Indemnify City Officials.

The ordinance providing for the indemnifying of all city officials for damages against them by property owners, when they (the city officials) were carrying out orders of the council, was read and created some discussion.

Alderman Minor explaned that the necessity for this ordinance arose recently when a suit was instituted against a city official who had carried out the instructions of the council. This suit was decided against the official. Mr. Minor said that in assuming the Hability, as it did in this ordinance, the city was doing no more than it was morally bound to do The ordinance passed, or was concurred in as it came from the lower branch.

Lending additional weight to the theory that young Harrison Felld fired the shot that caused his death at Reservoir Park last Saturday night it was learned yesterday that a young man bearing the description of Mr. Felld purchased a revolver indentical with the one found near his dead body, from the Virginia Loan Office, 216 North Ninth Street, Saturday afternoon, between five and six o'clock Two gentlemen who were in the pawnshop at the time, describe the pur-pawnshop at the time, describe the purchaser of the revolver as corresponding to the description of the dead young man.

While this discovery added to the force of the argument of those who have tenaciously held that the young man committed suicide, it did not in the least change the opinion of friends of Mr. Felld that death was due to an accident or murder. Even supposing that the young man purchased the revolver, it does not necessarily follow they claim, that he had any idea of taking his life, but it is suggested that he probably bought the revolver as a protection that night when he went to the Reservoir in search of the lost dog of a friend.

The Coroner's Inquiry.

The Coroner's Inquiry.

The Coroner's Inquiry.
Coroner Taylor was notified yesterday of the purchase of a revolver at the pawashop by a young man and found that the description of the revolver sold tallies with the one now in his possession, which was found near the dead body of Mr. Felid. Dr. aylor has not committed himself to any theory as to the death, It is believed that he is inclined to the belief that it was either accidental or suicide.

"The preponderance of circumstances point to the idea of an accident," said the doctor last night. He admitted, however, that the purchase of the revolver and the surroundings of the young man the time of his death might add to the idea of suicide. fr. Charles Atkinson, son of Councilman W. Atkinson, of Jefferson Ward, was elected the police force last night by the Board Police Commissioners to succeed the late G. Lamkin. of Police Commissioners to succeen the into Z. G. Lamkin.

There were several candidates for the poaltien, but Mr. Atkinson was the unanimous choice. He is twenty-four years of age, and a very popular young man in the city of the commissioners did police Court, but took of action. In company with Mr. Humphrey Colder, keeper of Reservoir Park, who was the first to reach the scene after the fatal shot was fired, Dr. Taylor went to the Reservoir yesterday afternoon and made a plat of the territory where the body was found.

He also got the relative positions of Mr. Felid and Mr. Walter Miles, who was perhaps the nearest person to Fields when the shot was fired. Although hearing the report and plainly seeing the flash of the revolver, Mr. Miles did not see the form of a person.

Saw No One Else.

Saw No One Else.

Mr. Calder, when seen yesterday by a Times-Dispatch reporter, said that a few minutes before the report of the revolver he noticed a young mas coming from the north end of the Reservoir. The person seemed to be in a deep study, and frequently stopped with his head bowed. Mr. Calder believes that this person was Mr. Felld; in fact, he is confident of it. From the time, the shot was fired until Mr. Calder reached the bedy, not more than seven minutes clapsed. If there was another person near, he believes that he would have seen him. A minute after the shot was fired Mr. Calder was in the walk leading around the south side of the Reservoir, and used his field glasses to search for the party who had fired the shot. He saw no one. of the battle of Drewry's Bluff and the part played in it by Kemper's Brigade. He referred humorously to the capture of the Massachusotts Star Brigade, under the command of General Heckman, which surrendered to the old Virginians under peculiar circumstances. The latter crept up behind to where the Federal mess quarters lay and captured the hot steaming coffee just being prepared for the northerners' breakfast. They drank what was to them delicious coffee and taunted the fleeing Fedorals, calling them to come back and get their breakfast. The relation of the little incident brought much applicates.
